SUSPENSION OF WATER CARTING SERVICES

Tuesday, 14 February 2017

Recent rains over the last few days have had a positive impact on dam levels feeding Butterworth and surrounding areas.

The ADM is therefore temporary suspending its water carting activities to these areas as from Friday 17 February 2017, and will be providing water through the normal water supply system from Sat 18 February 2017.

The ADM will carefully monitor dam levels over the weekend and an assessment will be made early next week as to whether or not water carting will assume and to which areas.

In the meantime the ADM still has not received any response from either National or Provincial government in respect of its request for urgent assistance in dealing with the drought.
